A Look Inside the Classroom

Geology students exploded two types of volcanoes today—a shield volcano (baking soda and vinegar) and a cinder volcano (ammonium chloride with a magnesium fuse). The cinder volcano erupted much ash and fire and, as a bonus, burst into flames!

Biology students used stethoscopes to listen to their breathing and calculated calories.

Chemistry students wrote a song to help them remember the names of chemical formulas.

Secondary art classes are learning to do the centuries old art of Chinese brush painting. It is an art form of simplicity and a painting can be completed in just a few minutes with minimal tools.

This is the first year of varsity boys basketball. We're half way through the season and the players are improving with each game. Two and a half weeks are left of the season, so come on out and cheer on our teams. Admission is only $2 per adult. Students with ASB cards and kids under 12 are free. Middle school boys and girls teams are having their league playoffs Feb. 1-3. Location is to be announced.

Both teams are young, but the turn-out is good with 14 on the girls team and 19 on the boys team. We're excited to see athletics come alive here on this campus. The Winter Sports Awards Banquet is on Feb. 12th at 6:30 pm in the Chapel.

During the Chapels today, I reminded parents that re-enrollment starts Feb. 13th. Be sure to get signed up for next year's classes. Last year we had families wait until the summer to sign up and some classes were full. We want a place for your kids to continue being educated at the level that we want on this campus. We find that our students work hard and learn; using the gifts that God has given them in their daily class work. Parents and teachers alike want the students to give their best! We're a praying school—Matt. 6:9-13.
