A LOOK INSIDE THE CLASSROOM...

Geology students recently took a field trip to the Thorngren's backyard to study a stream. They drew a map of the stream, drew pictures of the flora and fauna, tested the pH, temperature and turbidity of the water, in addition to exploring the various features of the stream. The results of all this work? Healthy!!

Chemistry students conducted a series of labs to demonstrate Boyles & Charles' Law. As pressure increases in a syringe, the volume of a marshmallow decreases. As temperature decreases in a freezer, the volume of a balloon will decrease. Students can now with confidence explain why a bag of chips expands while traveling up a mountain!!!

Thanks for continuing to bring in procurements for the auction. It's good to see so many parents excited as we watch God at work in this school. Imagine, ticket sales are already at 160 (out of 320 max)! Please talk to your friends and neighbors about coming to the auction—it's a great evening of fun, fellowship and food! This auction is one part of the vision of our school pulling together for the future. The plans of a new campus and building are being worked on. Every piece of property that has come our way has been examined by our attorney. Pastor Fuiten has continued to hold on to the Mill Creek property in case we can't find something larger nearby. Therefore, continue to pray for our school and the property that is waiting for us! We had Chapel awards today where teachers had the opportunity to speak into the lives of your kids. As Matthew 19:14 states: Jesus said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the Kingdom of Heaven belongs to such as these." God bless,
